HEART PURITY is at the heart of the atonement made by Christ for all men. “Wherefore Jesus also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate” (Hebrews 13:12).

Full abandonment to the revealed will of God is the area of light in which one must walk to find fellowship with the Lord and to have access to the Blood which cleanseth from all sin. “If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin” (1 John 1:7).

Heart purity is that spiritual state into which one enters when the love of God is shed abroad in the heart by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us. “And hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us” (Romans 5:5).

John’s baptism was with water and was applied to the outward man and stood for repentance and change in the outward life, while Christ’s baptism was with the Holy Ghost and was applied inwardly and wrought a renovating, chaff-burning experience that thoroughly purged the floor of a man’s nature by His refining fire.

“I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire: whose fan is in his hand, and he will throughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner; but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire” (Matthew 3:11-12).

Peter in describing what happened when the household of Cornelius was baptized with the Holy Ghost declared that it was the same as what happened to the disciples at Pentecost. Then he lifted up the chief central event, “purifying their hearts by faith” (Acts 15:8-9).

Since no special office in the Church and no special gift of the Spirit is bestowed upon every person, we must conclude that no special office in the Church and no special gift of the Spirit is essential to see God. Jesus declared that a pure heart, for which there is no counterfeit, was the passport through heaven’s gate.

“Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God” (Matthew 5:8).
LITTLE BILL’S new baby sister had tiptoed into his home while he slept. It really wasn’t a very clever trick. Any full-grown, five-year-old male would have been tempted to despise it. There was, however, one redeeming feature. When he demanded, “Where did she come from?” they answered him, “From God!”

Good! Now at long last the wee fellow had at least one reliable informant. So they found him a day or two later with his philosopher’s face pressing against the cot-bars in the nursery and pleading urgently, “Quick . . . before you forget. What is God like?”

Moses prayed, “Shew me thy glory.” The answer was, “There shall no man see me, and live.” Job cried, “Oh that I knew where I might find him! that I might come even to his seat!” (Job 23:5) Philip cried, “Shew us the Father.” Jesus said, “Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.”

So! The hindrances to seeing God, to knowing Him and walking with Him, are all in the heart! That’s encouraging. And it’s depressing when we look into our hearts and see their defilement and their division and their deceitfulness; and when we remember all that God says about them. “The heart [of man] is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked! who can know it?”

But it is encouraging when we recall that any other basis of qualification for seeing God would be impossible and unjust. Just imagine if the verse said, “Blessed are the brilliant—or the wise—or the very important people—for they shall see God!” Encouraging, too, when we remember what the Book says, “God, which knoweth the hearts, . . . purifying their hearts by faith.” Just like that! And in an instant!

To be pure of heart is to be clean. There are no spots on the inward soul. It is to be single-minded; no fool on the inward eye. It is “to will one thing” and that the will of God. It is to be utterly sincere; no faking; no duplicity; no adulteration; no hypocrisy.

The heart can be made clean. “Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.” That’s a certainty when God works. Jesus said, “Every plant, which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up.” It’s true! As the Baptist said, “He will throughly purge his floor.”

Purity of heart is cleanliness of soul; it is the complete renovation of the house of God on the central floor of the human personality—and God living in. And the pure in heart do see God. Without holiness no man shall see God, but the pure in heart see Him now. Everywhere! Always! He is within and He is around. His eye guides; His hand strengthens; His voice reassures and commands. And the pure in heart endure “as seeing him who is invisible.” And seeing Him, they serve with unshaken confidence, for they also see His invisible armies.

And they will see Him! It is written, “His servants . . . shall see his face; and his name shall be in their foreheads.”

For though from out the bourne of Time and Place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar.

“We shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is.” “Because as he is, so are we in this world.”

Ah to be clean again in mine own sight
As in God’s most holy sight;
To reach through any fire or flood or pain
Whiteness most white!

Not just any fire or flood or pain. Whiteness “most white” is the breathtaking promise and offer God makes to me, and you, and the rest of us, in the glorious gospel of Jesus Christ. “The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin.” Wash the heart and wash the eyes! “Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.”

The cleansing stream, I see, I see!
I plunge and, oh, it cleanseth me!

I rise to walk in heaven’s own light
Above the world and sin,
With heart made pure, and garments white.
And Christ enthroned within.

Lord, who shall abide in thy tabernacle? who shall dwell in thy holy hill? He that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness, and speaketh the truth in his heart.—Psalms 15:1-2.
THE DEVIL in kid gloves

By JAMES A. HAMILTON
Pastor, Morgantown, West Virginia

THE DEVIL works in kid gloves. A man may have been robbed of the best that he had, and there is not a mark of any kind to reveal it.

In a certain city not too long ago two thieves, at different times, were apprehended wearing kid gloves. The reason they wore gloves is that paint easily takes fingermarks and thumbmarks. Thieves want, above all, to do their work without being caught. They do not desire to call attention to themselves.

The devil is very particular about appearances. He can lie and cheat and gamble and sin and appear not to have a spot on his cuffs or collars, and not have a trace of bad manners about him. His victims are sinners as others, but they are not caught yet. This segment of humanity, the adversary is very careful to keep respectable.

The devil will steal the best you have, and leave you apparently unharmed. He will rob a beautiful girl of her virtue, and leave her beautiful. He will rob a young man of the cleanness of his heart, and he still appears as clean as his unstained companions. He will rob the merchant of his integrity and honesty, and people still think he has not a spot upon his character.

Politicians have been known to take prices for contracts and "notes" for votes, and still appear before the public open-faced, clean-handed, and honest as the daylight.

Satan will steal from the Christian his prayer time, leave him empty and defeated, but still making a profession. Some ministers have been known to become so encumbered with worldly entanglements that it became easier to be passive toward any evil and evasive of truth and their high and holy calling.

If the devil’s work showed every time, people would avoid it as poison. However, most of the time it goes on and on and nobody detects the slightest mark. The soul is robbed of all the best things it has, and Satan has done it with such cunning that the victim is unaware of the immediate loss.

Secret failure is failure, nevertheless, and secret sin is sin. If Satan has entered into a man, it little matters whether or not his work shows at the time.

The most deadening experience of all is when the devil is robbing a man, and the man himself is asleep and is not aware of what is taking place.

It often is true. Because one is not vigilant he loses the good from his heart. We are admonished by the Apostle Paul, “Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, . . . and Christ shall give thee light” (Ephesians 5:14).

I am a missionary first of all because God called me. Second to this I have something to give and want to give it to lost souls in other lands; thereby carrying out the great commission, “Go ye.”

Vice is a monster of so frightful mien,
As to be hated needs but to be seen;
Yet seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace.

—Alexander Pope
IN SOME RESPECTS ambassadors and spies are similar. They both have a love for their country, a devotion to its ideals, a deep desire and willingness to serve. Their work will usually be far from home, so it means absence from their own country, working in another land.

But in the performance of their duties there is a vast difference between an ambassador and a spy.

(1) While they are both in another country, the ambassador is stationed in a place of service under his country's flag. In fact, the embassy is owned by his country, and is not even considered a part of the land in which it is located. The local laws and regulations do not apply to those within its walls. The spy, on the other hand, is subject to the laws of the land in which he works, having no immunity from prosecution in its courts.

(2) The work of the ambassador is open. His position is one of honor, and is respected by the foreign power as he represents his own country. The work of the spy, by its very nature, involves secrecy. His friends are fewer, he must operate under suspicion, and he himself is suspicious of many with whom he must come in contact.

(3) The ambassador is expected to speak the truth, and with authority. He has the backing of his country, with all its power and glory. The spy practices deception, representing himself to be what he knows he is not; if not by actual statement, at least by implication. If he should be open and truthful, it would destroy the purpose of his work.

(4) The purposes of the ambassador are peaceful, while the spy is bent on subversion and possible destruction of the country in which he works. The spy seeks knowledge to the weakening of the land in which he lives; the ambassador seeks to advance the cause of his own country by convincing those of the other land of the virtues and designs for better living which he represents.

Paul insists that we Christians are ambassadors. Our citizenship is in heaven. We are seeking to reconcile sinful men to our Saviour, the Redeemer of the world. Since Christ is not present in the flesh, we, in His stead, urge men to turn to God. We cannot carry on this work as spies. We must be ambassadors.

A recent incident makes me wonder if some Christians may be in practice working more like spies than ambassadors. A friend was confined to a hospital, and when one of the members of his family went to visit him, he had occasion to eat a meal in the hospital cafeteria.

While there, he saw an acquaintance whom he had known for several years, who was a member of our church in that city. After visiting awhile, another friend, also a member of our church (but another congregation) in the city, joined him at his table. Both of these ladies were working for the hospital, and knew one another as employees, but were not aware that both belonged to the same denomination. In fact they seemed not even to know one another as Christians! Spies operate like this—not ambassadors.

Without raising a doubt as to their love for Christ and heaven, their devotion to Christian ideals, and a desire and willingness to serve God and His kingdom, there is serious doubt as to their effectiveness in seeking to reconcile to Christ those who are yet not heavenly citizens.

Oh, that there might be generated within us all a fervent compassion for the lost that would impel us to speak authoritatively, openly, convincingly, that truth which would free the enslaved of earth! Let us be true ambassadors for Christ!

Spring’s Story

I think the season of the year
That seems to be the best
Is spring, because it tells a fact
That’s greater than the rest.

The story it relates again
As it has year after year
Though winter’s blast oft times brings death,
New life will reappear.

It brings such hope and courage,
For though storms may come our way,
The spring affirms that peace will come
And all the storms allay.

MARCH 11, 1964 • (45) 5
“COULD you and your husband have dinner with us next Friday night?” asked the pleasant-faced young matron at the conclusion of our first visit to a Church of the Nazarene in the city to which we had just moved. Welcome words, these! That we chose to place our membership in this friendly church is not surprising.

But that we were invited, and so promptly, was more surprising than we cared to admit. Then when the next move, thousands of miles to Alaska, found us dinner guests for three of the first four Sundays, we felt as if our lines had truly fallen in pleasant places. We had lived in other cities and in other small towns, had attended and joined other Nazarene churches where pastors were un­failingly hospitable, but where often only a small fraction of the members shared their homes with us.

We like to consider ours a friendly denomination, concluding perhaps that informality automatically guarantees friendliness. Yet genuine fellowship involves more than a freedom from liturgy, and more even than a firm handshake and a smiling “How are you today?” (I know one couple who gave up on a sister church recently after the same greeter asked their names each Sunday for six weeks.) Although Christian friendship is a many-petaled flower, certainly hospitality is one of its most pleasant points. Paul frequently enjoined this practical virtue, as when he urged the Romans to be “given to hospitality” (Romans 12:13), or told Titus that a bishop must be a “lover of hospitality” (Titus 1:8).

Familiar to all of us is the command, “Be not forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some have entertained angels unawares” (Hebrews 13:2). What more effective way to verify an invitation to church than to confront the unsaved with, “And won’t you have dinner with us afterwards?” Surely the Holy Spirit uses the testimony of a Christian home. Do you remember that the first joyful impulse of the Philippian jailer subsequent to his conversion and baptism was to bring Paul and Silas into his house and set meat before them?

But the unsaved or newly converted are not the only ones to profit from such ministry. In the context of “fervent charity among yourselves,” Peter specifies, “Use hospitality one to another without grudging” (I Peter 4:9). It was a noteworthy characteristic of the Early Church that they continued “daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house” (Acts 2:46). Perhaps that was the earliest and happiest “progressive dinner” on record!

Many contemporary conditions militate against the close, Christian fellowship that we all want to receive and share: a multiplicity of social and business obligations, smaller homes or apartment living, and frequent moving about the country. Yet these very situations make the “breaking of bread together” more valuable. Plowed among unbelievers all week, the Christian finds soul nourishment in spending part of a day with one of like precious faith.

The young mother in a small apartment may need, more than even she knows, to see someone else’s walls and children. Our very mobility heightens the desirability of helping others to establish roots quickly in a new church community. We dare not suppose that a crowded church schedule—numerous church services, committee or board meetings, or even parties—can substitute for the personal warmth of “Come home with us today.”

Cocktail parties, lodges, and bridge clubs are the world’s poverty-stricken answer for recognized social needs. We who belong to Jesus have an emphatic obligation to meet one another’s normal social inclinations—which are not limited to the teen years—in Christ’s way. It was when the Master “sat at meat with them, . . . took bread, and blessed it, and brake” (Luke 24:30), that full recognition came to the Emmaus Road disciples. That must have been a poignantly characteristic gesture.

An obligation, yes, but oh, a glorious privilege it is when through Him, our great Common Denominator, an ordinary occasion becomes a blessed fellowship!

Here are some suggestions for Christian entertaining:

1. Entertain newcomers immediately. Don’t wait until you’ve washed curtains, polished the silverware, scoured the garbage cans, or taken a correspondence course in grammar. The stranger may be lonely now.
(2) Try having old friends and new ones together; your ease with old acquaintances, who also might need renewed fellowship, can make the occasion relaxing for all.

(3) If your home is really too small, or if the landlord is redecorating your apartment, pack a picnic lunch and find some scenery. One of our happiest memories is of an early morning breakfast with our host's pancakes as the feature attraction.

(4) When budgets and time are unusually thin, try potluck. And remember that cold cuts or TV dinners in the humblest home may be welcome fare indeed.

(5) Invite guests in advance if possible, allowing them to anticipate. But don't neglect a spontaneous invitation occasionally. How wonderful it was to be invited out for dinner the day I appeared in church on crutches!

Nothing less than our best in the Easter Offering of March 29 can please God. Nothing less than our best should please us. God's own goodness to us and a sense of the world's deep need combine to give us a sense of urgency that we cannot escape.

Why not invite someone today? You might discover an angel—or a friend!

"JESUS SAVES"

We have heard the joyful sound:
Jesus saves! Jesus saves!
Spread the tidings all around:
Jesus saves! Jesus saves!
Bear the news to ev'ry land;
Climb the steep's and cross the waves.
Onward!—'tis our Lord's command.
Jesus saves! Jesus saves!

Give the winds a mighty voice.
Jesus saves! Jesus saves!
Let the nations now rejoice.
Jesus saves! Jesus saves!
Shout salvation full and free.
Highest hills and deepest caves.
This our song of victory:
Jesus saves! Jesus saves!

MISS PRISCILLA J. OWENS, author of the words of “Jesus Saves,” was a Baltimore Sunday school teacher and worker. She was inspired to write this song-poem to celebrate a missionary anniversary in her Sunday school about eighty years ago. The children were very happy to sing this new hymn she had written for them to the tune “Vive le Roi,” from Meyerbeer's opera Les Huguenots. Soon this number, “Jesus Saves,” became a favorite and was sung in both Sunday school and church services everywhere.

The present musical setting was written by William J. Kirkpatrick. He was a native of Ireland but came to America at an early age and spent his lifetime as a musician and composer in the state of Pennsylvania. He became musical director of the Grace M.E. Church in Philadelphia, and not only became a writer of Christian poetry and song but a widely known singer of gospel melodies.

Late at his home one night in 1917 while working on the hymn-poem “Just as Thou Wilt, Lord,” Kirkpatrick received his heavenward summons. His wife found him slumped over his worktable. Underneath were these words so recently penned:

Just as Thou wilt, Lord, this is my cry,
Just as Thou wilt to live or to die.
I am Thy servant, Thou knowest best;
Just as Thou wilt, Lord, labor or rest.

Mr. Kirkpatrick published more than eighty-seven songbooks during his lifetime. Other compositions for which he is remembered are: “ 'Tis So Sweet to Trust in Jesus,” “He Hideth My Soul,” and “When Love Shines In.”

"DISCOVERING GOD’S WAY"
Is 1964 V.B.S. Theme

DISCOVERY is a key word in today’s educational world. Teachers know that children and youth learn best as they seek out truths for themselves.

Every child has an inborn desire to know God. We must not fail to provide the opportunity for him to learn about God and to know Him in a personal way. During 1964 vacation Bible school teachers will serve as guides while our boys and girls and youth are “Discovering God’s Way.” Teachers, too, will discover new horizons of blessing and service in V.B.S.

Each age-group, on its own level of achievement, can learn about God. Colorful books and learning aids are provided for all—preschool through teens.

Through God’s plan for our marvelous world they will see Him as Creator and Sustainer of the universe. In the Bible they will discover the way of salvation and God’s plan for successful living. In Jesus Christ they may see most clearly God’s love for us. How glad we are that “the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world”!

You can help to plan and promote vacation Bible school in your church. Make your 1964 V.B.S. the time when many will learn to know God through Jesus Christ, His Son and our Saviour.

NEW MATERIALS . . . Now Ready

The 1964 vacation Bible school materials are the most colorful and complete line ever offered. Four-color photographs brighten the book covers. All the pupil books have color on all inside pages.

Handy-craft Kits, which provide complete craft materials for the entire school in individual boxes for each child, are available for primary and junior children. Interesting craft activities for the kindergarten and nursery class children are built into their pupil books.

A valuable addition for 1964 are Teaching Aids packets prepared to correlate with the kindergarten, primary, and junior materials. These packets provide teachers with colorful visual aids which capture children’s interest and make better teaching possible. Song charts, Nu-Fu stories, paper puppets, stand-up figures, and picture stories are among the teaching aids developed to help children “SEE what you mean.”

The new color filmstrip, “New Horizons Through V.B.S.”, will guide teachers to the most effective use of our materials. It will also provide fresh inspiration for the important task of evangelism through vacation Bible school.

LET’S THINK about children. Not the children of ten or twenty years ago—but today’s children!

The world our children have inherited is filled with time schedules, tensions, frustrations, and fears. All too quickly these modern pressures affect the lives of our children—as do the forces of sin and evil.

Today’s children are a great challenge to the Church. Even more than a challenge, they are the responsibility of the Church. They are its hope for future days. The everlasting truths of love and salvation taught by the Church are the answer to fears and uncertainty—for child or adult.

This is the role vacation Bible school can play. For church children and for the needy unchurched youngsters of the community, V.B.S. can provide an opportunity to “Discover God’s Way.” Each child on his own level of understanding can learn about God, and His Son, who came to save us. Finding a personal faith to undergird life is the most vital challenge before every boy, girl, and young person. While he would not express it in this way, the need remains and demands satisfaction.

Vacation Bible school is well suited to this time of discovery. It provides more time—two full weeks of regular Bible study. The informal atmosphere encourages the questions by which children learn. The times of fellowship help the child get a balanced view of the Christian way of life as he works and plays with Christian adults.

The dual task of evangelism and guidance in Christian living can be effectively done in V.B.S. Close personal contacts and conversations as well as group sessions can be used to lead a child or young person into a personal experience with Jesus Christ. Careful nurture of the new Christian life is an equally important phase of the task of evangelism.

The opportunity is available to you. You may have a part in guiding the lives of boys and girls and youth as they are “Discovering God’s Way” in vacation Bible school.

Become a part of this vital church effort. You will discover new blessings as you help children find joy in living to please God. Even in a world of tension and distress, you can help them find peace and security in knowing and loving God.

CONSISTENCY
from a Pastor’s Point of View
By ORVAL W. AKERS
Nazarene, Elder, Anacortes, Washington

IF ONLY my people would keep their vows to the church with the same faithfulness as they keep their club’s rules!

If only I could count on faithfulness in attendance at all services in the same manner as it is expected at the service clubs! Should a penalty system be imposed?

If only my people would feel the same sense of urgency about their duties as church members generally and their personal obligations in relation to their particular job in the church as do politicians, labor leaders, and Communists!

Consistency—thou art a jewel: consistent living seven days a week and not just on Sundays; consistent witness—not just on prayer meeting night to a select group of well-wishers; consistent giving till it doesn’t hurt anymore—past the point of pain, that is.

Consistency—a fervent consistency—that is my desire for myself and for all of the people of my church.
By J. V. WILBANKS, Nazarene Layman, Colorado Springs, Colorado

THE BOLT OF LIGHTNING that struck the tree near which my car was parked hit in an infinitesimal period of time. This is what we call an instantaneous event.

Many denominations agree that without holiness “no man shall see the Lord” (see Hebrews 12:14). Among the difficulties of reconciling the great differences of opinion that exist in regard to this important doctrine is that of how the experience of entire sanctification is received. That is, Do we acquire purity of heart by imperceptible degrees, or is it an instantaneous experience? We of the Wesleyan-Arminian faith believe the latter.

There are at least three main objections to the theory that holds sanctification to be a gradual work:

(1) It is not biblical. This alone is enough to discredit the hypothesis. Not a single instance can be found in Holy Writ where God sanctified anyone by degrees, either ceremonially or actually.

(2) The idea is philosophically unsound. When we try to conceive of how the sin principle may be destroyed piecemeal fashion, we involve ourselves in inextricable difficulties. Carnality is “the body of sin” (Romans 6:6). It is no more possible to be rid of all envy and at the same time retain carnal pride than it is possible for a physical body to be decapitated and retain physical life. Also, if we believe that we are sanctified by imperceptible and gradual methods we can never be sure of just when that last and final degree of purification has taken place. Thus the game is always eluding the hunter.

(3) Another great obstacle to this theory is that it has no practical results. Christians have never testified to having received the “fulness of the blessing” in this manner.

Let us now view the Wesleyan position at these same three points:

(1) Instantaneous sanctification is biblical. Whether we go to the Old or the New Testament, God always sanctified as an act, and not as a long-drawn-out process. Old Testament sanctification was generally in a ceremonial sense, but the ritual that performed it invariably took little time. Whether we view the sanctifying of the seventh day (Genesis 2:3), or Moses’ sanctifying the Hebrews preparatory to receiving the law (Exodus 19:14), we can only understand these things to be actions, and not developments.

Take any example in the New Testament. Here we find the actual accomplishment of that which was typified in the old covenant. On the Day of Pentecost the Spirit came “suddenly” (Acts 2:2). In Acts 10:44, even while Peter was preaching to the Gentiles, “the Holy Ghost fell on all them.”

Peter and John went down to Samaria for the express purpose of getting the new Christians there sanctified. They “prayed for them, . . . Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost” (Acts 8:14-17). Other instances could be adduced, but these scriptural examples should convince any candid and unprejudiced mind that New Testament sanctification as the result of the baptism with the Spirit is obtained instantaneously.

(2) It is reasonable. We may reflect on the first work of justification. God forgives our sins all at once. Said Jesus of the weeping woman, “Her sins, which are many, are forgiven” (Luke 7:47). He does not forgive us piecemeal fashion. Neither does He cleanse the heart piecemeal fashion.

Look at it from the standpoint of power. It is reasonable to suppose that God can accomplish the work in a short time. Consider how God will raise all the deceased believers from the dead in a moment of time—“in the twinkling of an eye” (1 Corinthians 15:51-52).

Remember, too, that the Holy Spirit is a Gift (Acts 2:38). It is not the decorum of men to give gifts piecemeal. What would you think of a friend, who wished to make you a present of a valued watch, who one week would send you the wrist band; the next, the crystal; and so on until several months had elapsed before you had receive the entire gift? This is not God’s fashion, either, in bestowing His most valued of gifts.

(3) Experience corroborates it. Bona Fleming used to tell about an old Christian in one of his meetings. The old gentleman had been attempting to grow into the experience of holiness for nearly half a century. On being asked if he felt himself to be any nearer the coveted blessing than when he first started, he confessed that he did not. Bona persuaded him to come to an altar of prayer, where, after a short and earnest appeal to God, he was baptized with the Holy Spirit. What he had been attempting in his own strength to do for many years, the Spirit did for him in a moment!

Multiplied thousands have testified to receiving the Spirit in this manner. You too may be filled with the Holy Ghost in a moment of time. "According to your faith be it unto you."

But where sin abounded,
Grace abounded more.
Now where peace prevaleth,
 Darkness was before.
All my sins have vanished;
Jesus reigns in power;
And my heart is waiting
For the coming hour
When my King shall call me,
And I shall see His face.
For now I am a sinner
Saved by Jesus' grace!

ISLE OF ISOLATION

By JACK M. SCHARN, Pastor, Arcadia, California

WHAT DISTANT STRAND can separate the soul from the love of Christ? Shall isolation, or desolation, or tribulation? "Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us" (Romans 8:37).

The sterling, sensitive spirit of John was not defeated as his enemies expelled him to the distant desolation of Patmos. He was removed to isolation because he was a source of irritation. To his enemies, it was a quarantine against the quality and vitality of his quest for God. Perhaps they thought they would be immune to his contagious spirit of Christianity. Maybe they thought the desolation would drain his energies and freeze his fervor.

But John was one who drew from an artesian flow of grace. His fervor was oft rekindled and revived at the fireside of faith. God had grace to make this faithful outcast an overcomer.

John was persuaded that there was a providential purpose in Patmos. This was but an Isle of Intermission. Tribulation is temporary and its end result is triumph. He recorded his Patmos plight to the seven churches in Asia, saying: "I John, who also am your brother, and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ, was in the isle that is called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the testimony of Jesus Christ" (Revelation 1:9). The Apostle could have sat sulking at his surroundings, but he didn't! In simplicity of spirit he waited until he was rewarded with God's special revelation. He testified: "I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice, as of a trumpet" (v. 10). John was in the attitude and anticipation of worship. There was both spiritual preparation and participation. He was waiting expectantly and he heard from heaven, He was watching prayerfully and he saw God's salvation.

Suddenly Patmos became a paradise. There stood with him "the Son of man," the "Alpha and Omega, the first and the last." The glowing transfiguration lifted him above the tribulation and transformed his forsaken harbor into a haven. Why? Because his view was focused on the Son of God.

John saw in the wonder of his exile experience the greatness of God's hand—"And he had in his right hand seven stars" (Revelation 1:16). He was so awed that he fell as dead at the feet of Christ. Then he continued: "And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not" (v. 17). John had seen the wonder of God's right hand, but even more important and imperative was the warmth of feeling its personal touch. God knew John's need, and John knew God's visitation. There is no desolation in the presence of Deity. God insures the soul of His inseparable infinity.

Patmos became an Isle of Inspiration. There is no distant port too far from the presence of Christ. Faith is the passport to the place of peace. John would have perished on Patmos if his vision had been veiled with vain human reason and reaction, but he found spiritual treasure on his isle of tribulation. He believed that nothing could separate the soul from the love of Christ. He beheld the heavenly hand whose personal touch transforms the tragedies of life into triumph. He heard the heavenly voice saying, "Fear not." He was victoriously aware that there is no Isle of Isolation!

Apart, alone, for just a while?
Fear not the isolated isle!
Do dashing, spraying waves of doubt
Surround your island all about?
One walks the waves and treads the tide.
Fear not; He standeth at thy side!
Arrested Development

One of the hazards of human life is what is called arrested development. It happens when a person for any reason does not grow normally.

There are cases of arrested development physically. Physical growth may be stunted by injury or damage to glands or nervous system.

There are cases of arrested mental development, where the mind is retarded and may not grow beyond the stage normal to a child of three or four years.

There are a great many more cases of arrested development in the realm of the emotional, where an adult still reacts to life emotionally as a child or an adolescent.

But arrested spiritual development is different from other kinds of retarded growth. One may be quite normal physically, psychologically, and emotionally, and yet remain in spiritual infancy. It is one thing to be childlike. It is quite something else to be childish.

A spiritual infant is unstable. He cannot work with confidence and assurance. He often tumbls and falls, and must be set back on his feet. He has not developed sound spiritual habits. He is unpredictable and erratic in church attendance.

A spiritual infant is unproductive. He cannot take an active part in the work of the Kingdom. He requires constant care and support. Everything must be done for him. He is unable to do anything for others.

When spiritual infancy is prolonged beyond a normal length of time, the result is pitiful. Everyone loves a baby; and everyone abhors the person who just acts like one. The milk bottle and the little red wagon belong to the very young. It is a sorry picture when those who have been "in the way" for twenty years or more are still occupied with them. "When I became a man," said Paul, "I put away childish things."

WHAT ARE THE CAUSES of arrested spiritual development? One certainly is lack of nourishment. As mind and body must both be nourished if they are to grow normally, so must the soul and the spiritual life. The Bible, first of all, and good books and magazines provide "sincere milk" and "strong meat" for spiritual growth.

Lack of exercise will stunt the spirit of man. Failure to pray, to work, to take an active part in the life of the church retard normal spiritual growth.

Above all, disobedience always arrests development in Christian character. Nine times out of ten, if one will go back to the point where growth stopped there will be found light which has been ignored or refused.

The cure for this condition is parallel to its cause. Here is a major difference between arrested development in the realm of the spiritual and in other areas of life. Once development has been arrested in physical growth, in mental development, or in psychological maturity, it is almost impossible ever to get it started again.

But such is the mercy of God that if one will walk in the light of obedience, pick up the exercise of praying, witnessing, and working, and take plenty of good nourishment in Bible study, reading, and hearing the preaching of the Word, he will start to grow. He will be no more a child, "tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive: but speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ" (Ephesians 1:11-15).

"Missionaries" and Missionaries

Dr. Frank C. Laubach, the noted missionary-literacy expert, has recently said, "Communist 'missionaries' outnumber Christian missionaries ten to one." This is a startling and challenging claim. At the heels of, and sometimes even ahead of, the emissaries of the Cross are the minions of the hammer and sickle.

We sometimes find it hard to understand how such masses of people could be deceived and deluded into lending their strength and their very lives to the red tide of international communism. What we must realize is that the Communist is offering a very definite and clearly defined "gospel." He offers power to the weak, food to the hungry, liberty to the downtrodden and oppressed, revenge to the exploited.

Make no mistake about it, communism spreads with the contagion and explosive power of a religious faith. Its devotees are dedicated. Its program of action appeals to the sinful natures of men. Its tools are deadly and tragically effective: hate, violence, massacre, subversion, faithless promises, and "the big lie."

IT WOULD BE, to this editor at least, very questionable to use the admitted and real threat of commumism as the incentive for Christian missions. Christians are motivated best, not by danger, not by threats, not by enticements to prestige and honor; but by the vision of One who hung on the middle cross.

On the other hand, we must see that human nature, like all nature, abhors a vacuum. The Church must move into its world-field rapidly, or it will find that world-field preempted by an implacable foe. Quite apart from all military considerations, Christianity and communism cannot coexist as moral forces struggling for the loyalties of men.

Some seem to think that the way to meet the threat of Communist expansion is to talk about it. But one thing is dismally missing, and that is any constructive program of action to meet the need.

Wherever true Christian missionaries have gone, they have taken the by-products of their faith with them: schools, hospitals, books, and hope. But they have done more than teach people to read; they have given them something to read. They have done more than meet some of the problems of health in backward areas; they have offered a program and power for life to which men and women could give their new health and strength.

IGNORANCE, poverty, and greed are bitter and stubborn facts. Yet basically they are symptoms. If you cured all the symptoms, you'd still have the disease. Here is where the gospel surpasses all the plans and programs that men can institute. It lays the axe to the root of the tree. It strikes at the entrenchment of evil deep in the human heart. Its concern about the symptoms is great, but its cure for the disease is unmatched.

Roy L. Smith has said: "There may be many reasons why communism has made more converts during the past twenty years than Christianity has during the past three hundred. But at least one of the reasons is that the Communist missionaries have had the money to work with." If we really want to do something about the crisis of our day, we can at least see to it that the gap between the "missionaries" and the missionaries is narrowed, both in numbers of people working and in that with which they have to work.

During one of the great labor crises of recent years the Secretary of Labor received a telegram, the total message of which was, "Do something." Usually our problem is not that we are unwilling to "do something," but we don't know just what to do. Our soon-coming Easter Offering for world evangelism is part of the answer. It isn't spectacular, and it isn't new. If it has any lacks, they lie in the sad refrain, "Too little, and too late." As one has said, "It isn't that Christianity has been tried and found wanting. It has been found difficult, and not tried."

I'm not sure any of us can say when we are doing enough. I am sure we can't say it as long as our average per capita giving for foreign missions is just a little over two and one-half cents per day. The plea of J. G. Morrison is as appropriate now as it was when it was wrong from his heart in the late twenties, "O brethren, can't you do a little more?"

We shall never hear the Saviour's "Well done," unless we have "done something," and have done our best.

Editorial Note...

The cover and two pages of material in this issue of the Herald remind us that it is time to start planning for vacation Bible school this summer. The material has been prepared by Miss Mary Latham and her staff in the V.B.S. division in our Department of Church Schools. Proper planning and persistent prayer will make V.B.S. time another means of getting the gospel out to unreached children and their homes.

ROY SMEE, Secretary

EASTER OFFERING, 1964

"The love of Christ constraineth us." This is the supreme motivation for what we do for the Lord. This Easter we want to see an offering that will help us go over the top in our goal of $18 million for the General Budget this quadrennium. That is a worthy record, but it is not our principal motivation. We must come back to that love of Christ which has found us, drawn us, convicted us, redeemed us, surrounded us, sanctified us, and still constrains us.

What does the Easter Offering mean to home missions? The Department looks to the Easter Offering for one-third of its annual budget of $61,300. Of that amount 60.3 percent is for overseas home missionary areas and the Negro and Chinese work in the United States. Another 28.2 percent is for our radio ministry, reaching out through "Showers of Blessing," and for home missionary needs in our smaller districts.

But these are only figures. The Easter Offering really means operating expenses for Bible colleges in Australia, South Africa, and Germany; training men to fill pastorates in new churches; it means support for a home mission pastor in a new church in New Zealand; it means payments for a needed church building in Hawaii; it means buying radio time for "Showers of Blessing" to go out over the continent of Australia; it means a revival meeting for our churches in the Panama Canal Zone; it means gasoline in a station wagon for a missionary in Samoa to go about his task; it means holiness literature in South Africa; it means fuel during the long winter for Alaskan parsonages; it means salary for a district superintendent in Germany, so that he is free to keep at the task of reaching a mighty modern nation with holiness evangelism; it means money for the fare of men and women who have left home and loved ones to heed the call of the gospel.

New Address for Taiwan Nazarene Headquarters

Rev. Harry Wiese, district superintendent of our Taiwan Nazarene mission field, writes that they have a new address: Church of the Nazarene, P.O. Box 920, Taipei, Taiwan, Free China. This address should be used for all first-class mail, magazines, and parcel-post packages of used clothing, gifts, etc. Used clothing is always urgently needed in this island with its thousands of refugees—clothing of all weights, especially summer clothing, for men, women, and children. Blankets and quilts are needed also. Keep these relief supplies moving to Brother Wiese.

Ordinary Freight Shipments

If used clothing is shipped by freight it must be fumigated, and a notarized fumigation certificate or a fumigation certificate from a health officer must be supplied. Barrels or boxes of used clothing must be shipped to the following address:

Church of the Nazarene
P.O. Box 920
Taipei, Taiwan, Free China

If this is shipped to Brother Wiese personally, he will have to pay duty on the shipments. Please use the address as given above.

"Operation Handclasp"—"People-to-People"

Shipments sent through "Operation Handclasp" (navy) and "People-to-People" (army) program require NO DUTY and the receiving is simplified in Taiwan. It would be safer to fumigate. Shipments through these above agencies are given to the Church of the Nazarene Mission and the missionaries do their own distributing.

For the "Operation Handclasp" or "People-to-People" shipments use the address:

Pei Tow, Taipei, Taiwan

Rev. and Mrs. John McKay are returning from India in March because of Mrs. McKay’s illness. It is possible that Mrs. McKay will have to have eye surgery after they arrive.

Rev. S. S. Jenkins has been stricken with a serious heart condition and is in the hospital in Africa. He was visiting a fellow missionary when he suffered a severe heart attack. There has been a second attack since then.

Miss Agnes Willcox, recently furloughed from British Honduras, has returned to Scotland for major surgery for a tumor.

Please remember these missionaries in special prayer.

Olivet Nazarene College

Rev. Fletcher Spruce, New England District superintendent, and Professor Irving Kranich, of the Olivet faculty, were the called workers in the Youth Week Revival jointly sponsored by Olivet Nazarene College and College Church of the Nazarene, Kankakee, Illinois.

Rev. Forrest W. Nash is doing a most effective work as College Church pastor. On his seventh anniversary the church, by an overwhelming vote extended a three-year recall. College Church looks forward to a fruitful growth under his continuing leadership.—R. L. Lumsford, Reporter.

THE LOCAL CHURCHES

Fort Smith, Arkansas—First Church recently enjoyed one of the greatest revivals of its past several years with Evangelist Forrest Glaze. Corpus Christi, Texas—Arlington Heights Church had a gracious revival in January with Rev. Wesley Hockett as evangelist. He is an able preacher and carries a burden for souls. The music was under the direction of Millard Reynolds. God blessed in giving a goodly number of professions, with five new members added to the church on profession of faith. The entire church received spiritual help. Statistics for this year have exceeded those of last year for our church.—L. L. Gaine, Pastor.

Spiegel, Indiana—"Old-fashioned revival" has been brought up to date here in the very youth of our church in the Indianapolis District. For weeks the church had prayed and fasted, and under the rugged gospel preaching of Rev. John Dulin, and the spirit-annointed singing of Jim and Verda Sexton, God came into our midst. There were twenty-three victories at the altar of prayer, and night after night the presence of the Lord was manifested among us.—Bill Selvidge, Pastor.

GALUP, NEW MEXICO—The Twin Butte Navajo Mission recently closed a Holy Ghost revival with Rev. and Mrs. Easton Dennis as the special workers. The altar was lined every night, with some hard cases saved and sanctified, and several people were healed. Langley, Secretary.

Rev. Arthur W. Gould writes: "Several years ago, due to death in the family, it became necessary for me to cancel a three-year slate of revival conventions, camps, and local church meet­ings. In the interim, however, my local church superintendents have granted us time out for two revivals annually, and we have enjoyed working with our fine pastors in several states. My wife, the former Margaret Higgs, has spent many years in the field of song evangelism. We are now returning to the field, working as a team to care for the preaching, song leading, and special music. Our slate is shaping up nice for the us. 5% of our Publishing House, P.O. Box 527, Kansas City, Missouri 64114."

RICHMOND, KENTUCKY—Rev. Simon Gorman came to pastor First Church last September. The work is going forward under his capable leadership, with new members being received. On Monday, January 20, Pastor Gorman, wife, and David entertained forty-eight members with a banquet to their passage. Zone N.Y.S. Chairman Roger Wilson was the speaker. This was followed by a highly successful youth revival with Rev. Garnald Dennis as evangelist. The Spirit of the Lord came upon the services in rich blessing, giving faith seekers during the week's crusade. We greatly appreciated Brother Dennis' ministry with us.—Nannie B. Hise, Secretary.

PEORIA, ILLINOIS—Members and friends of Forrest Hill Church praise God for the recent revival with Evangelist Charles Millhuff and Singer Jack Bierce. God blessed the services and there were several definite victories for claiming and sanctifying grace. On Sunday morning the Holy Spirit broke in during the special singing and gave a most blessed service. These brethren are sincere workers for God and greatly appreciated their ministry in preaching and singing.—Wm. Smith, Pastor.

Evangelist James Robbins of Bedford, Indiana, writes that he has left the field and is moving to Lansing, Illinois, to accept a pastorate.
Newell, West Virginia—First Church recently experienced a very fine revival with Evangelist W. Ray Duncan, who preached on the doctrine and experience of heart holiness in each service. It was a nucleus of the entire church, and a spiritual revival, and the church board voted to ask Brother Duncan to return. Our church is spiritual, growing, united, with fine progress being made in all departments. There is deep, sincere love and respect between pastor and people. The church has given the pastor a very wonderful four-year call.

—IRA E. FOWLER, Pastor.

Hialeah, Florida—Recently we had a wonderful revival here with Evangelist Paul Stewart preaching with the anointing of the Holy Spirit; he carries a real burden for souls. God honored with the altars filled with seekers from night to night. Jim and Evelyn Callihan sang the glory down on the hearts of the people. Recently our church completed remodeling the sanctum and educational unit, so as to seat for 200 in Sunday school and 450 in the preaching services. God has blessed our people and gains are reported in every department. We have invited two friends in high places to send me their names (P.O. Box 1112).

—DAVE ERICKSON, Pastor.

McMinnville, Tennessee—Recently our church enjoyed a ten-day revival with Evangelist C. E. Haden. Although this is a small church, God blessed with His presence, and souls prayed through at the altar. Pastor Paul Gibbons is not in McMinnville here, but is well thought of in the community. He loves God and His work—LINNY WURTZBERGER, Secretary.

Anchorage, Alaska—God is blessing First Church under the new leadership of Rev. and Mrs. Hugh E. Hines, who came to us from Seward when Rev. and Mrs. M. R. Korody left for Fairbanks. Wayman F. Newfield, West Virginia—Our church enjoyed good Youth Week services with Rev. Ellen Rowan as singer and evangelist. She is a good preacher, and also helped us by working with the juniors and teens as choir director. Miss Rowan’s talks with the teen-agers before services were used of the Lord—FRED WINGER, Pastor.

Atchison, Kansas—Our church enjoyed good Youth Week services with Rev. Ellen Rowan and Mrs. Rowan. She is a good preacher, and also helped us by working with the juniors and teens as choir director. THE BIBLE LESSON

By NELSON G. MINK

Topic for March 15:
Pilate Judged by Jesus

Golden Text: To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth (John 18:37).

There was a strange reversal of circumstances when Jesus stood before the governor that day. Pilate was hardly prepared for the situation in which he found himself at this time. No one, in fact, is prepared to appear before Him who has not sought His peace and found His pardon.

We have two types of power on demonstration, the temporal and the spiritual; an earthly kingdom destined to fall, and the kingdom of Heaven, that will outlast the sands of time and will shine on forever. The poet said: "Souls were made to last forever."

Men in positions of power, being often tempted by selfish ambition or because of group pressures, will oppose the truth. Many a man elected to office has later found conflicting influences brought to bear against him so that he has a struggle with his own conscience about the outcome of issues.

I feel sorry for Pilate. I have pity for him. I want to believe he really tried to come out on the right side. I stand and watch his struggle. "What will you do with Jesus?" Did he really do his best? Well, the answer is, "No!" He pushed aside the convictions that had crowded in. He made some quick decisions. He lost the battle for his own soul, and turned away, never to be the same again. No one ever can be the same after meeting Jesus. Tradition tells us that Pilate later committed suicide. How sad that there was not someone nearby to show him how to repent and believe and be saved!

I believe we learn from this lesson that all who are confronted by Christ are judged by Him. Our big job as Christians is to lift up Christ, to get Him before people—by personal contact at the "coffee break"; to get that word in, wherever possible, as the paths of others intersect with ours. We are His witnesses. As we take Him known to others, some of them will make the right decision and be eternally saved.

Pilate’s case is closed, but we can by our own efforts and by the lives we live, make it easy for others to know Him, and give life eternal.

The 500,000-watt radio station built and operated by Trans World Radio on the island of Banaire, Netherlands Antilles, will broadcast "La Hora Nazarena" at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday each week. The station goes on the air next Sunday, March 15, for the first time.

This new missionary radio is the most powerful station in the Western Hemisphere, and will cover most of the south central United States as well as all of Latin America. The standard wavelength broadcasts are at 800 kilocycles. "La Hora Nazarena" will also be re-broadcast on a 50,000-watt shortwave transmitter. Nebraska "Traveling Revival"

Every church on the Nebraska District was visited in a 7,000-mile itinerary by Evangelist Bob Taylor of Dayton, Ohio, and District Superintendent Whitcomb Harding in a series of one-night revival rallies extending over 50 days. The attendance was excellent, high interest was sustained, and every invitation was honored with seekers. Dr. Harding reports that the district has decided to make this an annual occasion.

Revival in Mexico

Rev. David Sol, district superintendent of the Southeast Mexico District, reports an outstanding revival in Tuxtla Gutierrez, Mexico, which has reached out far beyond the city. The campaign began on January 17 and was scheduled to run two weeks.

From the second week on, attendance has run one thousand people each night, hundreds coming from the villages around as well as from the city itself. The revival has already continued more than a month, recently with over a hundred converts each night. Other Protestant churches are sharing the effects, and all available literature, Bibles, and Testaments in Spanish have been given out. A full report is scheduled for the May Other Sheep.

New Linotype for Publishing House

A new "electronic mixer" linotype machine has been installed at the Nazarene Publishing House at a cost of approximately $24,000. This machine is capable of mixing two kinds or sizes of type at the touch of a button. Special electronic and mechanical features make possible a speed of twelve lines a minute as compared with standard operation of seven lines.

One immediate use of the "mixer" feature of the new equipment is setting scripture quotations in boldface type in the first volume of the new Beacon Bible Commentary, expected to be ready for introduction at the General Assembly in June.

The cover photographs on the 1964 vacation Bible school Nuture Clas Pupil and Junior Pupil have been awarded blue ribbons by the Professional Photographers Association of Greater Kansas City. The color photographs were entered in competition by Photographer Charles Paddock in the Third Annual Blue Ribbon Exhibit. The vacation Bible school cover photographs were hung for two days in the new Kemper Gallery of the Kansas City Art Institute after the blue-ribbon awards were made.

Capitol's "Prayer Room" Used as a Lounge

Atlanta, Ga. (EP) — The prayer room in Georgia's State Capitol is "being used more as a lunchroom or lounge than for reverence and meditation," Secretary of State Ben W. Fortson said here.

"I'm sorry to say it is misused at times. People have used it for eating and other things," he charged.

The prayer room was established seven years ago by legislation introduced by Senator Brown of Atlanta.
Hi,

Yesterday was Sunday and the saddest 😞 thing happened. I saw Annie 😘. She is my friend two doors down the street. She has yellow pigtails. I like her so much. That's why it was so 😞 to see her so lonesome. She was sitting on the front ☹️ all by herself. Our family was going to Sunday school. We all had our 📚 and were as clean as could be! 😎 just watched us. I thought about her all morning in Sunday school and 🏡. When we got home I ran down to her 🏡 to see if she would go to Sunday school with me next Sunday.

She said she wanted to. I'm so 😊. Wouldn't you be, too? Love, Gloria
